Judy Vesel is passionate about science education and creating new ways of learning for those with disabilities. Here, she discusses her latest project which investigates how technologies such as iPod apps can further the educational experiences of the deaf and hard of hearing during museum visits.

Increasing Access to Technical Science Vocabulary Through Use of Universally Designed Signing Dictionaries. — Judy Vesel and Tara Robillard

Is it sunny or cloudy, raining or snowing, hot or cold outside? Each and every day, we want to know what the weather is like to help us plan our day. In this universally designed iBook unit for grades 3-5, students with and without sensory disabilities … More »

This paper discusses evaluation research in classrooms with students in grades 9–12 who are deaf or hard of hearing and who communicate in sign language. More »

Summary

This paper discusses implementation research conducted by TERC, Inc., at the Museum of Science (MoS) in Boston. More »

Teaching Mathematics Vocabulary with an Interactive Signing Math Dictionary — Judy Vesel and Tara Robillard

The Universal eBook: Assistive Technology Meets 21st Century Book Publishing