

Eye Tracking for the Study of Seeing and Imagining

Principal Investigator:

PROJECT WEBSITES

Topics:

RELATED TERC
RESOURCES

Grade Levels:

Funders:

National Science Foundation

Project Website:

Studies in eye motion provide evidence that visual perception is not instantaneous, but an exploratory process. This project is studying the crucial relationship between visual perception and imagination in mathematics learning by using a tracker to monitor an interviewee's eye movements while writing, handling objects, walking, looking at a computer screen, and imagining different aspects of motion. Funded by the National Science Foundation.